ACADEMIC SUPPORT SPECIALTIES

There are several services available to you through the office of the school's Academic Support Specialist, Adrienne Meddock.

1. Writing Lab. A non-credit writing lab will be given once a week. While this class is primarily for first-year students, second and third year students may find it useful as well. This semester's focus will be organizing and completing writing projects, especially memoranda and essay answers. Text: Clear & Effective Legal Writing, by Charrow and Erhardt. The class will meet 10:00 a.m. Thursdays in Room 202.

2. Individual Study. Students who have a class conflict with the writing lab or who have particular writing problems they would like to resolve are welcome to meet with me individually. Interested students should bring a previously graded assignment for analysis, as I am unable to review projects that will be submitted to another professor for a grade.

3. Word Perfect. Students interested in learning wordprocessing using the most common law office program, WordPerfect, can arrange for individual instruction with me. See me for details.

4. North and South Carolina Bar Exams. I am happy to answer your questions on preparing for these bar examinations, especially for those students who plan on taking both tests. Students interested in forming a South Carolina Bar study group should see me.

5. Tutorials. The student-led tutorials began January 21. Please clip the following schedule for your records:
