NOVEMBER 15 - 18, 1998 ABA SITE EVALUATION

Two copies of the final Law School Self-Study Report have been placed on reserve at the Law Library front desk.

You are encouraged to read the document and share your comments and suggestions with your SBA representatives or Dean Mills.

ATTENTION 1L LEGAL BIBLIOGRAPHY STUDENTS

The final Lexis and Westlaw sign up times for computer training have been posted in the Law Library. Your Lexis pre-work is due at the beginning of your Lexis training class. Please remember to bring your Lexis password and signed agreement to this class. Your second Lexis assignment, pp. 457-460 from The Process of Legal Research, 4th ed., is due in class for the evening students on October 27, 1998 and for the day students on October 30, 1998.

The Westlaw class will be held on October 27th for evening students and October 30th for day students. The Westlaw pre-work will be handed out in class at that time. This pre-work is due at the beginning of your Westlaw training class. Please remember to bring your Westlaw password to this class. Your second Westlaw assignment, pp. 457-460 from The Process of Legal Research, 4th ed., is due at the date and time of your Final Examination of this class.

IMPORTANT!

ALL STUDENTS PLEASE PLAN TO ATTEND A Women's Judges Forum which will be held in the Moot Courtroom on Thursday, October 22nd from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Court of Appeals Judge Linda McGee, Judge Elaine O'Neal, Judge Patrice Hinnant and Judge Brenda Becton will be on the panel. This will be very interesting and students will be able to ask questions of these fine judges.

It is important that we turn out and show our support for this program! A brief reception will follow the forum.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Law School Civil Rights Class will participate in a seminar on October 23 - 24, 1998 at the University of North Carolina @ Wilmington to commemorate the 1898 Massacre that occurred in that city.

John Hope Franklin, one of America's most recognized and noted African American scholars and chairman of President Bill Clinton's advisory panel on race relations, will deliver the keynote address at 8:00 p.m. Friday in the Warwick Center (formerly the University Center) on the UNC-W campus. For more information, contact Dr. Melton McLaurin, UNC-W, (910) 962-3137 or visit the web site at <http://www.uncwil.euc/dpsee/>.

The class invites other Law School students to join them for this timely and educational event. There is no registration for the seminar. If you plan to stay, you will be responsible for sharing expenses with those who travel with you. We regret that scholarships are not available for this event. If you have questions or need additional information, contact Professor Irving Joyner at the School of Law.

STREET LAW is an exciting new course being offered this spring semester! Please see Lydia Lavelle, the Pro Bono Coordinator, in Room 201-C as soon as possible for details about this course!

Millie Hershner and Steve Terranova - see Lydia Lavelle ASAP!

The North Carolina Court of Appeals is coming to our Law School to hold court on Wednesday, October 28, 1998! This is a great opportunity for students to see the Court in action. Three cases will be argued beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the Moot Courtroom. For a handout describing the cases being argued, see Lydia Lavelle in Room 201-C.

You are invited to a discussion of

BECOMING AND BEING A PATENT ATTORNEY

Tuesday, October 27th, 5:00 - 6:15

Have you ever thought of becoming a patent attorney?

Have you ever wondered what is required to become a patent attorney? Have you ever wondered what exactly patent attorneys do, and who employs them? You are invited to join the students taking Patent Law this semester to find out. Come to the Patent Law class in ROOM 202, from 5:00 - 6:15 p.m. on TUESDAY, OCTOBER 27TH. A brief presentation by a number of patent attorneys from the RTP area who practice in large or small private firms, or corporations, and who have very diverse backgrounds, will be followed by time for you to ask questions. Call Lynn Barber if you have questions about this event: 833-8150.
