SAVE THE DATE ... THURS., SEPT. 25 ... LARRY MARSHALL!

Professor Larry Marshall, Director of the Center on Wrongful Convictions at Northwestern University School of Law, will speak at NCCU Law School on Thursday, Sept. 25 at 5pm to kick off the academic year for the Innocence Project at the Law School.

The Northwestern Center on Wrongful Convictions

played a major role in identifying a number of innocent Illinois death row inmates, leading to former Governor George Ryan's imposition of a moratorium on executions in Illinois in January 2000, and to a blanket commutation to all of Illinois' death row in January 2003.
